

Sports

Jacobs Field

Cleveland, OH

Located in the middle of downtown Cleveland, Ohio, Progressive Field (formerly Jacobs Field) is home to the Cleveland Indians of the American League.

Jacobs Field was built as part of an urban renewal project that also included parking garages and landscaped plazas. It occupies 12 acres of the 28 acre Gateway Sports & Entertainment Complex, which also includes the Arena at Gateway, home of the NBA's Cavaliers.

Jacobs Field received design awards from the American Institute of Architects in 1994, 1995 and 1996.

Kroll Security Group was hired to provide security planning, design and implementation management services for the project.

Security Systems Design Included:

- Security Lighting
- Barriers
- Security Management System
- Access Control
- Point Monitoring
- Motion Detection Sensors
- Door Position Monitoring Devices
- Duress Alarm Devices
- Time Delayed Exiting Devices
- Suite Electronic Locking System
- Security Assistance Intercom System
- Closed Circuit Television System
- Two Way Radio System
- Communications Recording System

Reference

Steve Evans

HOK Sport + Venue + Event

Completion Date: 1994

Total Area: 106,000 sf

